NEW LENOX MAN HIT BY AUTO; DIES OF INJURY

Mr. Stephen Wrobel, 60 years old of New Lenox who was injured by a friend and neighbor's automobile last Thursday night, died in St. Joseph's hospital in Joliet, Sunday evening at seven o'clock.

Mr. Wrobel was knocked down by a car driven by Lawrence Barry who did not see Mr. Wrobel walking on the road near his home on Cedar street.

Mr. Barry swerved his car to avoid colliding with another car which was backing out of a drive way.

Mrs. Wrobel who was walking along side her husband, was also knocked to the ground but not hurt.

Mr. Barry immediately took both to St. Joseph's hospital where it was determined Mr. Wrobel had sustained a skull fracture.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marianne Wrobel.

Funeral services were held Thursday morning at 9:00 o'clock from the home to St. Thaddeus church on Columbus street in Joliet. Burial was made in Resurrection cemetery at Argo.

H. F. Mall In Mayoralty Race

Mokena village politics are beginning to claim attention. The latest political dope is that Harry F. Mall, local lumber dealer is a candidate for mayor. He held this office a number of years ago. Several other potential candidates are also being groomed, but so far no petitions have been filed with the village clerk.

The present incumbents up for re-election are: for supervisor, Wm. Kampe; town clerk, Henry J. Geuther; assessor Joe Kohl; collector, George Mager; justices of the peace, R. Hensel and J. M. Clark.

Tinley Woman's Club News

The exhibit which the Tinley Park Women's club had, under their chairmanship of Mrs. Frank Baldwin, at the American Home Institute held recently at Beverly Hills, and which took first prize in their group, caused such a sensation, that Mrs. Baldwin has been asked to send it to the National convention of Federated Women's clubs which will be held in Tulsa, Oklahoma in June.

The picture of this exhibit, together with Mrs. Baldwin and the chairman of two other winning exhibits, appeared in last Saturday's Chicago Daily News.

Suit Club Racket Should Be Shunned

The suit club racket is being worked in Will County by Chicago tailoring concerns. Agents for a suit club recently worked Frankfort township and also worked those who signed up.

The plan was to pay in $1 a week for 38 weeks. A drawing was held each week and the holder of the winning number was to get a suit for whatever amount he paid in. Those not winning were supposed to get a suit when the $38 was paid in.

When a Mokena member of this suit club went to the tailoring firm's headquarters in Chicago after he had paid in $38, he was greatly surprised and disappointed at the cheap shoddy suit he was offered for $38. When he protested, he was shown a suit of better quality cloth but was told it was selling for $100. After an argument about the quality and price of the suits, the tailoring firm came down on the price and finally agreed to sell the $100 suit for $58. The suit club member then paid an additional $20 to the $38 he had already paid into the suit club but claims he has not received the suit or heard anything more about it. Similar complaints have been heard in Frankfort.

The best and sure way of getting quality cloth and a square deal is to ignore the suit club racket and purchase a suit from a reliable tailor direct.

All farmers and village residents will do well to bear this in mind the next time someone offers a bait to get business.

Will Hold Dance

The Wm. Martin Post 725 of the VFW will hold a dance at the Frankfort Hall, Feb. 27th.

Tinley To Battle Steger Teams On Saturday Night

Rivals for many years, Tinley Park and Steger will again meet on the hardwood floor in Tinley gym Saturday evening as part of the weekly business men's show. Drawings for the awards will take place at 9:00 p. m.

Starting promptly at 7:15 the TYO girls will open the program against the rangy Steger girls. This game has all the earmarks of a grudge battle. In their previous meeting at the opponent's home floor, the TYO team edged out a one point victory, 19 to 18. This game saw the lead changing hands several times and not until the final whistle was Tinley assured a victory.

The Steger boys will seek to avenge a previous defeat at the hands of the TYO. This was another close affair which saw Tinley pull away to a comfortable lead only to have Steger stage a determined rally in the closing moments. Tinley's last minute spurt enabled them to win 38 to 30.

As you see these two games promise to be closely contested so don't miss them.

WASHINGTON.

Oh, Washington! How great thou art!
Living, thou art still!
In the hearts and minds of us
Who with past deeds our memory fills.

Our Country man! We crown thee
With laurels in the halls of fame.
We reverence thee, we love thee,
In our hearts we enshrine thy name.

On to victory! So much to gain.
You could not fail or know defeat.
You gave your wealth, your life,
Your all, your country's need to meet.

Oh Washington! All hail to thee!
Though dead, thou speakest still.
Thy watchword then is our's now—
Freedom and Liberty, come good or ill.

So let us strive to fill our lives,
With aims in life so true
That on the pages of its book
Some honor to us may be due.

$1600 Silver Fox Shot Near Tinley Park; Mate Still Missing

Hunters in the vicinity of Tinley Park are out for rather expensive game when they shoot $1600 foxes.

A week ago some young men saw a fox on the Fred Breitbarth farm on 159th street and not knowing the value of the animal, shot it. Later it was discovered that it was a silver fox. A few days afterward, it was learned that the fox was from the Silver Fox farm located on the old Maltby farm between Tinley Park and Midlothian. The caretaker identified the dead fox as one his owner had paid $1600 for some time ago. This was a male fox. The caretaker also reported that a female silver fox had also disappeared from the fox farm and is still at large. The fox farm has been guarded by a watchman for sometime, but of late the watchman was dispensed with and shortly after this, someone cut the fence wires on the farm and the pair of silver foxes mentioned, escaped.

Several red foxes have been shot in and around Tinley Park territory this winter.

Police Chief And Mail Man Effect Rescue of Cat

Well here is story showing the close co-operation of the U. S. mail service and the police force to save a feline's life in Tinley Park.

Several days ago a pussy cat had climbed a Public Service light pole near the home of Sammy Brunner, the genial and popular rural mail carrier in Tinley Park. Pussy could not negotiate the downward trip so staged a two day pole sitting marathon, but cried out in fright as only a real frightened tabby can.

The stalwart arm of the law in Tinley Park, Police Chief C. A. Steinhagen called up the Public Service office in Blue Island and told them of tabby's plight. A lineman was supposed to come out at once, but thru some event or other he was delayed in doing so, and pussy still kept up her sit down or on strike and again the neighbors sought someone to help pussy to get back to earth again. Then is when the genial representative of Uncle Sam's mail service offered his services and took the matter up with the Public Service and this time a lineman came and putting on his spurs he climbed the light pole, but was careful to carry a sack with him into which pussy was lured and then brought down to terra firma.

We have heard the expression "like a streak of lightning" which adequately described the quickness with which puss disappeared when let out of the bag.

Chief Steinhagen being a very tall man, some folks thought he could just reach up and rescue puss, but the chief was shy about touching hot wires and like many public officials he does not relish the idea of contacting "hot stuff."

Hot-Air Bags

The hot-air balloon, first device to carry man from the ground in free flight, is staging a comeback. Two Austrian inventors have built such a balloon which has ascended 6,500 feet.

The air in the balloon is heated by an intense kerosene flame. No gas, such as hydrogen or helium, is necessary. The lifting is done entirely by hot air. No ballast is needed. The balloon may be made to ascend by turning up the kerosene flame, and to descend by turning it down. — Washington Post.

THE GARDEN MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE

SYNOPSIS

Philo Vance, famous detective, and John F. X. Markham, district attorney for New York county are dining in Vance's apartment when Vance receives an anonymous telephone message informing him of a "disturbing psychological tension at Professor Ephraim Garden's apartment" advising that he read up on radio-active sodium, consult a passage in the Aeneid and consulting that "Equanimity is essential." Professor Garden is famous in chemical research. The message, decoded by Vance, reminds him that Professor Garden's son, Floyd and his puny cousin, Woode Swift, are addicted to horse-racing. Vance says that "Equanimity" is a horse running next day in the Rivermont handicap. Vance is convinced that the message was sent by Dr. Siefert, the Gardens' family physician. He arranges to have lunch next day at the Gardens' penthouse. Vance is greeted by Floyd Garden and meets Lowe Hamme, an elderly follower of horse racing. Floyd expresses concern over Swift's queer actions. Mrs. Garden, supposedly ill, comes downstairs and places a $100 bet on a horse. Gathered around an elaborate loud speaker service, listening to the racing are Cecil Kroon, Madge Weatherby and Zalia Graem, who bet varying amounts on the race. There is tension under the surface gaiety. Zalia and Swift are not on speaking terms. Kroon leaves to keep an appointment before the race starts. Miss Beeton, a nurse, and Vance bet on "Azure Star." Swift recklessly bets $10,000 on "Equanimity" and goes to the roof garden to hear the results. Floyd follows Swift, remaining away from the group several minutes. Zalia goes to the den to answer a telephone call. Soon after the announcement that "Azure Star" wins, the guests hear a shot. Vance finds Swift dead, shot through the head with a revolver nearby. He says Swift has been murdered. After calling the police, he finds the door of a vault. Kroon returns and is sharply questioned by Vance, who finds he had not left the building. Vance orders Miss Beeton to guard the stairway and prevent Mrs. Garden and Zalia from viewing Swift's body.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

"Garden," he began, "there are a few things that I'd like to have cleared up before the district attorney and the police arrive." He turned about leisurely and sat down at the desk, facing Garden.

"Anything I can do to help," Garden mumbled, lighting his pipe.

"A few necessary questions, don't you know," Vance went on. "Hope they won't upset you, and all that. But the fact is, Mr. Markham will probably want me to take a hand in the investigations, since I was a witness to the preamble of this distressing tragedy."

"I hope he does," Garden returned.

"It's a damnable affair, and I'd like to see the axe fall, no matter whom it might behead." His pipe was giving him trouble. "By the way, Vance," he went on quietly, "how did you happen to come here today? I've asked you so often to join our racing seance—and you pick the one day when the roof blows off the place."

Vance kept his eyes on Garden for a moment.

"The fact is," he said at length, "I got an anonymous telephone message last night, vaguely outlining the situation here and mentioning Equanimity."

Garden jerked himself up to keen attention.

"The devil you say!" he exclaimed. "That's a queer one. Man or woman?"

"Oh, it was a man," Vance replied casually.

Garden pursed his lips and, after a moment's meditation, said quietly:

"Well, anyway, I'm damned glad you did come. . . . What can I tell you that might be of help? Anything you want, old man."

"First of all, then," asked Vance, "did you recognize the revolver? I saw you looking at it rather apprehensively when we came out on the roof."

Garden frowned, and finally answered, as if with sudden resolution:

"Yes! I did recognize it, Vance. It belongs to the old gentleman—"

"Your father?"

Garden nodded grimly. "He's had it for years. Why he ever got it in the first place, I don't know—he probably hasn't the slightest idea how to use it. . . ."

"By the by," Vance put in, "what time does your father generally return home from the university?"

"Why—why—" Garden hesitated and then continued: "On Saturdays he's always here early in the afternoon—rarely after three. Gives himself and his staff a half-holiday."

"But," he added, "father's very erratic. . . ." His voice trailed off nervously.

Vance took two deep inhalations on his cigarette: he was watching Garden attentively. Then he asked in a soft tone:

"What's on your mind?—Unless, of course, you have good reason for not wanting to tell me."

Garden took a long breath and stood up. He seemed to be deeply troubled as he walked across the room and back.

"The truth is, Vance," he said, as he resumed his place on the davenport, "I don't even know where the pater is this afternoon. As soon as I came downstairs after Woody's death, I called him to give him the news. I thought he'd want to get here as soon as possible in the circumstances. But I was told that he'd locked up the laboratory and left the university about two o'clock."

"I could not understand the man's perturbation; and I could see that it puzzled Vance as well. Vance endeavored to put him at his ease.

"It really doesn't matter," he said, as if dismissing the subject.

"It may be just as well that your father doesn't learn of the tragedy till later." He smoked for a moment. "But to get back to the revolver: where was it usually kept?"

"In the center drawer of the desk upstairs," Garden told him promptly.

"And was the fact generally known to the other members of the household, or to Swift himself?"

Garden nodded. "Oh, yes. There was no secret about it. We often joked with the old gentleman about his 'arsenal.'"

"And the revolver was always loaded?"

"So far as I know, yes."

"And was there an extra supply of cartridges?"

"As to that, I cannot say," Garden answered. "But I don't think so."

"And here's a very important question, Garden," Vance went on. "How many of the people that are here today could possibly have known that your father kept this loaded revolver in his desk? Now, think carefully before answering."

Garden meditated for several moments. He looked off into space and puffed steadily on his pipe.

"I am trying to remember," he said reminiscently, "just who was here the day Zalia came upon the gun—"

"What day was that?" Vance cut in sharply.

"It was about three months ago," Garden explained. "You see, we used to have the telephone set-up connected upstairs in the study. But some of the western races came in so late that it began to interfere with the old gentleman's routine when he came home from the university. So we moved the paraphernalia down into the drawing room. As a matter of fact, it was more convenient; and the mater didn't object—in fact, she rather enjoyed it."

"But what happened on this particular day?" insisted Vance.

"Well, we were all upstairs in the study, going through the whole silly racing rigmarole that you witnessed this afternoon, when Zalia Graem, who always sat at the old gentleman's desk, began opening the drawers, looking for a piece of scratch paper on which to figure the mutuels. She finally opened the center drawer and saw the revolver. She brought it out with a flourish and, laughing like a silly school-girl, pointed it around the room. I reprimanded her—rather rudely, I'm afraid—and ordered her to put the revolver back in its place, as it was loaded—and just then a race came over the amplifier, and the episode was ended."

"Most interestin'," murmured Vance. "And can you recall how many of those present today were likewise present at Miss Graem's little enticement?"

"I rather think they were all there, if my memory is correct."

Vance sighed.

"A bit futile—eh, what? No possible elimination along that line."

Garden looked up, startled.

"Elimination? I don't understand. We were all downstairs here this afternoon except Kroon—and he was out—when the shot was fired."

At this moment there was a slight commotion in the hallway. It sounded as if a scuffle of some kind was in process, and a shrill, protesting voice mingled with the calm but determined tones of the nurse.

Vance went immediately to the door and threw it open. There, just outside the den door, only a short distance from the stairway, were Miss Weatherby and Miss Beeton. The nurse had a firm hold on the other woman and was calmly arguing with her. As Vance stepped toward them, Miss Weatherby turned to face him and drew herself up arrogantly.

"What's the meaning of this?" she demanded. "Must I be mauled by a menial because I wish to go upstairs?"

"Miss Beeton has orders that no one is to go upstairs," Vance said sternly. "And I was unaware that she is a menial."

"But why can't I go upstairs?" the woman asked with dramatic emphasis. "I want to see poor Woody. Death is so beautiful; and I was very fond of Woody. By whose orders, pray, am I being denied this last communion with the departed?"

"By my orders," Vance told her coldly. "Furthermore, this particular death is far from beautiful, I assure you. And the police will be here any minute. Until then no one will be permitted to disturb anything upstairs."

"Then why," she demanded with histrionic indignation, "was this woman"—she glanced with exaggerated contempt at the nurse—"coming down the stairs herself when I came into the hall?"

Vance made no attempt to hide a smile of amusement.

"I'm sure I don't know. I may ask her later. But she happens to be under instructions from me to let no one go upstairs. Will you be so good, Miss Weatherby," he added, almost harshly, "as to return to the drawing room and remain there until the officials arrive?"

The woman glared superciliously at the nurse, and then, with a toss of the head, strode toward the archway.

The nurse, obviously embarrassed, turned to resume her post, but Vance stopped her.

"Were you upstairs, Miss Beeton?" he asked in a kindly tone.

She was standing very erect, her face slightly flushed. She looked Vance frankly and firmly in the eye and slowly shook her head.

"I haven't left my post, Mr. Vance," she said quietly. "I understand my duty."

Vance returned her gaze for a moment, and then bowed his head slightly.

"Thank you, Miss Beeton," he said.

He came back into the den, and closing the door, addressed Garden again.

"Now that we have disposed temporarily of the theatrical queen,"—he smiled somberly—"suppose we continue with our little chat."

Garden chuckled mildly and began repacking his pipe.

"Queer girl, Madge; always acting like a tragedienne—but I don't think she's ever really been on the stage."

"You heard her tell me she was particularly fond of Swift," remarked Vance. "Just what did she mean by that?"

Garden shrugged. "Nothing at all, if you ask me. She didn't know that Woody was on earth, so to speak. But dead, Woody becomes a dramatic possibility."

"Yes, yes—quite," murmured Vance. "Which reminds me: what was the tiff between Swift and Miss Graem about? I noticed your little peace-maker advances this afternoon."

Garden became serious.

"I haven't been able to figure that situation out myself. Woody was pretty deep in the new-mown hay as far as Zalia went. Hovered round her all the time, and took all her good-natured bantering without a murmur. Then, suddenly, the embryonic love affair—or whatever it was—went sour. Obviously something had happened, but I never got the straight of it. It may have been a new flame on Woody's part—I rather imagine it was something of the kind. As for Zalia, she was never serious about it anyway. And I have an idea that Woody wanted that extra twenty thousand today for some reason connected with Zalia. . . ."

Garden stopped speaking abruptly and slapped his thigh. "By George! I wouldn't be surprised if that hard-bitten little gambler had turned Woody down because he was comparatively hard up. You can't tell about these girls today. They're as practical as the devil himself."

Vance nodded thoughtfully.

"Your observations rather fit with the remarks she made to me a little while ago. She, too, wanted to go upstairs to see Swift. Gave as her excuse the fact that she felt she was to blame for the whole sordid business."

Garden grinned.

"Well, there you are." Then he remarked judicially: "But you can never tell about women."

"I wonder," Vance smoked in silence for a moment. Then he went on: "There's another matter in connection with Swift which you might be able to clear up for me. Could you suggest any reason why, when I placed the bet on Azure Star for Miss Beeton this afternoon, Swift should have looked at me as if he would enjoy murdering me?"

"I saw that too," Garden nodded.

"I can't say it meant anything much. Woody was always a weak sister where any woman was concerned. It took little to make him think he'd fallen in love. He may have become infatuated with the nurse—he'd been seeing her around here for the past few months. And now that you mention it, he's been somewhat poisonous toward me on several occasions because she was more or less friendly with me and ignored him entirely. But I'll say this for Woody: if he had ideas about Miss Beeton, his taste is improving. She's an unusual girl—different. . . ."

Vance nodded his head slowly and gazed with peculiar concentration out the window.

"Yes," he murmured. "Quite different." Then, as if bringing himself back from some alien train of thought, he crushed out his cigarette and leaned forward. "However, we'll drop speculation for the moment. . . . Suppose you tell me something about the vault upstairs."

Garden glanced up in evident surprise.

"There's nothing to tell about that old catch-all. It's neither mysterious nor formidable. And it's really not a vault at all. Several years ago the pater found that he had accumulated a lot of private papers and experimental data that he didn't want casual callers messing in. So he had this fire-proof storeroom built to house these scientific treasures of his. The vault, as you call it, was built as much for mere privacy as for actual safe-keeping. It's just a very small room with shelves around the walls."

"Has everyone in the house access to it?" asked Vance.

"Anyone so inclined," replied Garden. "But who in the name of Heaven, would want to go in there?"

"Really, y'know, I haven't the foggiest notion," Vance returned, "except that I found the door to it unlatched when I was coming downstairs a little while ago."

Pattern 5738

Companion squares in filet crochet make the loveliest household accessories. A square at a time made in spare moments—time you'll never miss—and before you know it you'll be ready to join them for a cloth or scarf. As a bedspread, too, this design will be a winner. Use string—it's easy to work with, inexpensive, lovely when done, and wears like iron. If it's gifts you're thinking of, use a finer cotton and make a pillow top, vanity set or other small articles that take but a few squares. In pattern 5738 you will find instructions and charts for making the squares shown; an illustration of them and of the stitches used; material requirements.

Letters To The Editor

Mr. Editor:

A lot of talk has been appearing in this paper about what we ought to do for the young people in this town. Someone signing himself "A Citizen," seems to think that a bowling alley will solve all our problems and train the young folks to be what we would like them to be. Another Citizen thinks that a community park will do this. Then along comes the prize idea of a community hall. Boy, that one takes the berries. Does Uncle Dudley have an idea what that would cost? The government may have money for counting leaves on the trees, but never for town halls. That is up to the people in the towns.

I wonder if these people who have these bright ideas, have any children? If they have, why don't they train their children at home instead of thinking up ways for the other people to spend their money, so that their kids can have fun?

I have five of them and if they don't behave, I take them out to the wood-shed and use the good old fashioned hickory stick to make them be good. They don't hang around street corners in town either. If everybody would do that for a change, then we wouldn't need parks and alleys.

OLD HICKORY.

TYO TO PLAY AGAINST

FORMER TEAM MEMBERS

Remember Paul and Rose Greco? Well, they are coming back to the old home town to oppose their former team mates.

Next Thursday, Feb. 25 at 7:30 p. m., you may witness two fine basketball games.

Rose, playing with the fast Belgian-Americans, will oppose the TYO girls in the opener. This team has been a potent outfit in the Evango's north side.

Immediately following the TYO boys will meet the Office Boosters outfit which Paul plays with. This team is leading a commercial league on the north side.

Come out and see the former favorites perform against their old team mates. Don't forget the date, Feb. 25th at the Tinley gym.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the Volunteer Firemen and neighbors for helping at the fire in the building in Tinley Park which is owned by us.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Maihoff
Mr. and Mrs. John Fastert

Mrs. Florence Anderson who has been ill with the flu is able to be out again.

Mrs. Evans, a former resident in the south Elmore subdivision, died quite suddenly in Chicago the past week.

The public sale held on the Speckter farm southeast of here Wednesday was very largely attended and good prices were realized. The top notch for horses was $156 and cows topped at $78.50. One horse which was purchased by Mr. Speckter a few years ago for $60 was sold for $90. Farm machinery also brought good prices.

Arthur Reiber is spending a few weeks in Tennessee.

The new butter and egg bread which the Tinley Pak bakery recently put on the market, has made quite a hit and is going over good. The latest addition to the line of goods handled by the bakery is home roasted peanuts.

Wm. Bettenhausen of Wishek, N. D., has written to Tinley Park relatives of the severe blizzards they have been experiencing in the northwest. Snow has blocked the highways in some instances being from 10 to 12 feet deep. As a result of the tie up of highway as well as rail traffic there has been a shortage of feed for stock causing much suffering among livestock. Mr. Bettenhausen mentioned about a nearby town being without rail road service for four days due to the railroad being snow bound. The weather has been extremely cold. He writes: the weather is moderating. It is now only 14 degrees below zero." Illinois weather suits us all right.

G. Dini has sold his ice route. The Trinity Lutheran church at Bachelors Grove has contributed thru its Sunday school, the parochial school, Ladies Aid and the congregation, a total of $115 to the flood relief fund.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our appreciation for the sympathy and assistance tendered us in our hour of bereavement; for the many floral pieces and also for the use of automobiles.

We especially thank Rev. Buddenhausen for his kind and comforting words.

The Niagara Girls Club enjoyed an old-fashioned good time last Monday evening when their sponsor Mrs. John Swisher invited them into her kitchen to enjoy an old-fashioned happy pull. Mrs. Swisher made candy and the girls pulled "and pulled." They pulled blisters on their hands, and each other in, and out of the kitchen. Enthusiasm ran high, and if you think one can't dance and pull candy at the same time, your mistaken. The girls all had a good time, and "Shush" don't tell any one, but they all well, you ask them!

OUR PARTY

Last Friday evening the 'Sippel' had a glee, what was the reason, why, 'twas plain enough to see. The Sunshine club had gathered there to have a party.

'Twas Miss Helen's birthday, why, anyone could see, there were presents from the parlor, way out to the pantry.

Then games were started, and what fun had we!

The first game was Honest Abe, the next was Radio, and Paul with his "Hee, Haw, Haw," made every one laugh, and then there was a She told us of school days, and how she courted pa.

Oh dear I've got three dresses, give me a hat, I don't want no dresses now, what do you think of that! And so on, and so forth, till at last in grand array, Miss Rose marched forward and says, I've saved the day.

I've shoes, hat, coat and glove, I'm fit as a fiddle and ready for love.

Oh yes the eats, what eats they did bring, why say there was food enough for a king. Angel foods, devil's foods, what should we be, why there's so much left over that we could feed a army.

But now that it's over and Miss Helen should happy be, We hear she is very sad and wishes she were only three.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Soul" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, February 14.

The Golden Text was, "Truly my soul waiteth upon God: from him cometh my salvation" (Psalms 62:1). Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Master, which is the great commandment in the law? Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind" (Matthew 22:36-37).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The proper use of the word soul can always be gained by substituting the word God, where the deity meaning is required. In other cases, use the word sense, and you will have the scientific signification. As used in Christian Science, Soul is properly the synonym of Spirit, or God; but out of Science, soul is identical with sense, with material sensation" (P. 482).

and prizes were awarded to Harold Miller, Chas. Froelich, Mrs. Martin Jungles, Mrs. John Walsh, Mrs. N. J. Gunhouse and Mrs. David Haussner.

Valentines were exchanged and lunch was served. Everett Cooper and Lawrence Miller entertained with piano duets. George Rinke vocalized in a very pleasing manner. Eileen Walsh played several piano selections in her own inimitable way. Hugh Tierney added gaiety to the party with a Fred Astaire tap dance.

Washington's
Great Example

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Historians have said that no name is better known or more highly revered throughout the world than that of George Washington.

They call it "The brightest name on history's page."

Why? Because Washington sought and won political power for himself? The historians say no. Rather it was because he relinquished such power—which was his for the taking—to invest it instead in the people under the constitutional system of checks and balances on which our Republic is based.

"But for Washington," explain the historians, "the Republic would never have been conceived; the Constitution would not have been formed, and the Federal Government would never have been put in operation."

What an example to those leaders who, throughout the world, seem now engaged in taking power from the people for themselves.

What an example to the dictators of Europe and their admirers—who believe that the world has outlived the democracy for which Washington fought, and which in a brief century and a half made the nation he fathered the greatest and happiest on earth!

Washington's fame rests not on the power he grasped for himself, but on the power he assured to the people. That is something for all the world to remember as it honors the most famous of American birthdays.

and Mrs. Louis Pelkey were in charge of the program.

The Catholic Youth Organization will hold a special meeting Monday night February 19 in the home of Dolores Walsh. All members are urged to be present.

Improper Signalling
Causes Accidents

Improper signalling and failure of motorists to signal their intentions to the driver behind caused more than 28,000 motor vehicle accidents last year thruout the nation, in which 260 persons were killed and 36,000 were injured it was disclosed in a safety bulletin issued by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes.

It is mandatory in Illinois for motorists to signal their intentions to the driver behind even in cold and rainy weather when it is necessary to lower a window in order to do so, declared Secretary Hughes.

The revised motor vehicle act expressly specifies that motorists are required to indicate intention to turn either right or left while still within 100 feet of the turning point.

According to the act the following signals are official in Illinois:

Right turn—Hand and arm extended upward or moved with a sweeping motion from the rear to the front.

Left turn—Hand and arm extended horizontally. The approach for the left turn shall be made in that portion of the right half of the road way nearest the center line. After entering the intersection the left turn shall be made so as to leave the intersection to the right of the center line of the roadway being entered.

To stop or slow down—Hand and arm extended downward.

Secretary Hughes pointed out that where trucks and buses are so constructed that it is impossible for the driver to signal by hand the law requires owners to install mechanical devices with which to signify intent.

Henry Koerner
Popular County
Clerk Married

Will County's chief deputy to Dan Cupid, the man who has announced month after month that he was establishing new records in Cupid's behalf, has himself succumbed to the accuracy of the little nude marksman.

To prove that politics makes no difference when affairs of the heart are concerned, Henry Koerner, the popular county clerk of Will County was married a week ago Thursday to Marie Powers Marvick, Republican hold-over clerk in the office of Circuit Clerk George J. Butell, Jr.

Coming as a complete surprise to even close friends of the couple, Mrs. Marvick went into the office of her husband-to-be a week ago Thursday afternoon, dug down into her pocketbook, produced a dollar and announced to County Clerk Koerner that she wanted to obtain a license to wed County Clerk Koerner. Needless to say, County Clerk Koerner obeyed her request with speed and thereby became what is believed to be the first county clerk in Illinois to issue his own marriage license.

Without stepping out of the court house, the happy pair went to the county court room where amidst a beautiful array of floral pieces they were united in marriage by County Judge George N. Blatt. The ceremony was witnessed by nearly 200 county employees, friends and relatives of the bride and groom.

The bride had all the trimmings at her wedding as fellow employees hurriedly completed plans when the news of the impending event leaked out early in the afternoon. The wedding march was played on two piano accordians.

No less a personage than Edward G. Powers, veteran investigator for the state's attorneys office and uncle of the bride, served as best man. Gladys Koerner, oldest daughter of the county clerk, attended the bride.

The unexpected turnout completely surprised the bridal couple.

After the county clerk clasped his bride in his arms, his handshake with the judge was the signal for a demonstration that gave the court house janitors a headache. The happy couple was pelted with everything from rice to candy hearts as they sought to escape from the room.

Following a brief honeymoon the newlyweds returned to their duties in the court house last Monday.

Their host of friends thruout the county wish the happy couple much happiness and prosperity in their new life.

Even
EASTER EGGS
SHOULD BE MODERN

EASTER dates from the dawn of Christianity, but the chief symbol which is connected with it in these modern times should be as modern as the time — at least within a day or two. The Easter egg is a symbol of reviving life, but, even at that, we don't want it chirping at us if we chip it—that is if we aspire to eat it!

There are so many ways to cook eggs that there has been a centuries-old debate as to which is the best. Even the poets have participated in this argument. In the Seventeenth Century John Dryden wrote:

"And new-laid eggs which Baucis' busy care Turn'd by a gentle fire and roasted rare."

And Alexander Pope also preferred his eggs roasted if we are to believe the line in his Epistles of Horace in which he says:

"The vulgar boil, the learned roast, an egg."

Take Your Choice

You can take your choice as to whether to brand yourself vulgar or learned by the way you prefer your eggs. We won't take sides. But, as far as we can discover, no poet has ever mentioned an omelet (perhaps because there is no rhyme for it, though there's a reason) so we can safely tell about them without getting involved in the controversy.

There are two basic ways of making an omelet — the French way in which the eggs are beaten slightly, just enough to mix the yellow and white, and the other way in which the yolks are beaten until thick and lemon colored and the whites are beaten until stiff and then folded into the yolks to make a puffy omelet.

But all sorts of foods can be included in these two kinds of omelets. They can be made with cheese, fish, fruits, macaroni, meats, jelly and vegetables, and this by no means exhausts their possibilities. We have not space to give recipes for all these kinds, but we can at least include a couple of

Vegetable Omelets

Tomato Omelet: Chop one small onion and half a green pepper fine and sauté in one tablespoon butter till tender but not brown. Add one cup canned tomato sauce, one-half teaspoon sugar, salt and pepper, if necessary, and three tablespoons chopped ripe olives. Heat to boiling and pour over either a French or a puffy omelet before folding.

Corn Omelet: Make a puffy omelet of six eggs, six tablespoons hot water, three-fourths teaspoon salt and one-third teaspoon pepper. Add one cup of canned corn and pour into a buttered, hot skillet or better, into two smaller ones. Cook slowly until brown on the bottom, then place in a moderate—350 degree—oven until firm and the top dried off. Fold over and turn out onto a hot platter, garnish with bacon strips and serve at once. Serves six liberally.

Tinley Legion Auxiliary

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY
Viola L. Carr, Unit Pub. Chairman

The American Legion Auxiliary of Tinley Park Post No. 615 held their first regular meeting of February on Lincoln's birthday.

A short program in honor of Lincoln was planned for the evening by the Unit Americanism Chairman, Mrs. Pearle Henke. A large portrait of Lincoln was exhibited while our chairman, gave a very interesting portrayal of Lincoln's life from his humble birth, boyhood homelife, political career and untimely death.

The Juniors joined the auxiliary in donating to the flood relief by giving two dollars from their own fund. The proceeds from the animal circus, to be handed to flood relief was $16.51 and we feel this a very successful affair since Tinley Park has been called upon to give to many other organizations.

Mrs. Ceithamel is still receiving clothes of all kinds and bedding for flood relief. This clothing is transferred from Tinley to Harvey relief station and finally forwarded to the flood area.

Membership is growing and Mamie Brandau reports only eight more needed to put Tinley Park in the 100 per cent line. 45 members are now paid up and lets hurry with the eight more before Feb. 26, the dead line for the eighth district.

Georgine Mager reported National Defense plate brought in $4.12 at our birthday party. Two plates were purchased by our Unit from district as our part in National Defense program. These plates were awarded some lucky winner.

The proceeds from these plates enable the National Defense committee to carry on their program.

Through the faithful and untiring service of Francis Rowden, Tinley Park unit received a citation for becoming a REHABILITATION SOONER. All units carrying out 1937 Department Rehabilitation program by Jan. 15 received this honor an award of a white satin ribbon for the flag staff which will bear the inscription: "Rehabilitation Sooner". 1937.

Mrs. Rowden is taking care of the needs of three different hospitals each month and would like new decks of playing cards for Anna

Hospital Geographical magazines for Elgin State and sewer carpet rags—strips one and one half to 2 inches wide—wound into balls for North Chicago.

Our ladies will be only too glad to hold a sewing bee any time and sew all clean rags delivered to them for the hospital.

We have three sick members reports our Sunshine Chairman, Mrs. Amanda Brandau and sincerely hope them a speedy recovery to health. Mrs. Mabee, Mrs. Murphy ad Mrs. Felton we miss you at our meetings.

Unit Fidac Chairman, Viola Carr has Fidac review on file for memers and gave a short history of Fidac Auxiliary pres. Mrs. Joseph Thompson of Beaver Falls, Pa. She is leader to Fidac women of eleven countries that were allied in the World War, and is the second American woman to hold this highest office in the interallied organization. In addition to her Fidac activities Mrs. Thompson has served the American Legion Auxiliary since 1922 as a leading figure, being President of the Pennsylvania Dept., and for several years was National Historian, compiling the first volume of Auxiliary's National history.

Her husband Colonel Joseph H. Thompson, was one of the outstanding heroes of the war, receiving the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Distinguished Service Cross, Croix de Guerre, Legion of Honor and Italian Order of the Crown for gallantry in action. He was one of the organizers of Fidac and attended every Congress until his death.

Mrs. Freitag will represent our unit at the Annual Patriotic Conference and dinner, to be held at the Medinah Club, Chicago, March 1. The national Pres. Mrs. Oscar Hahn of Nebraska is to be there. Every member of the Auxiliary is cordially invited to attend both the conference and dinner. Make reservations for dinner now.

Mamie Brandau reported on 8th District meeting. The oratorical Americanism contest was won by a Homewood girl. The subject: "America an Example to the World" ten minutes was the time limit.

Mrs. Freitag attended the Council meeting and reported on Immigration, National Defense and ROTC. Esther Ward replaces Marge West as 8th District delegate. The Auxiliary wishes to thank the T Y O for their kindness in making it possible for us to use the school auditorium last Thurs. night for our flood relief project. We sponsored a ball game in return for the T Y O boys and girls Thursday evening Feb. 18. The proceeds also goes for flood relief.

The next meeting is Feb. 26 and social night. Mrs. Flannery is hostess. Bunco will be played. Help make this a success.

ORLAND PARK SCHOOL NEWS

The new laboratory experiment table arrived Monday. It is equipped with water, gas and electricity. Experiments may now be performed before the class much more easily than heretofore when it was necessary to go to the basement for water and to the adjoining high school room for equipment.

The five dollars which the PTA gave the high school at Christmas, and the two dollars which the high school has received for attendance at the P. T. A. meetings have been used to buy a new dictionary which we have now.

Monday afternoon, some beautiful colored slides of various places in Italy and the Alps were shown to the high school pupils and Miss Van Camp's room.

Since there is no skating, due to the disappearance of the ice, snowballing is the favorite sport during recreation periods this week.

William Elkin returned to his school duties after a week of illness. Last week we failed to mention that Marie Heiting has had a perfect record of attendance for the first semester.

Friday afternoon the high school will observe Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays by presenting a one-act skit entitled, "When Presidents Meet." The following will take part:

The work is part of a larger program to provide adequate facilities in the Calumet region for an increasing use of the lakes-gulf waterway. Completion of the project will substitute the Calumet and Little Calumet rivers and the Sag channel for the Chicago river as the major connecting route between Lake Michigan and the Chicago sanitary and ship canal.

Lesson for February 21

THE POWER OF JESUS OVER DEATH

LESSON TEXT — John 11:23-28, 32-44.
GOLDEN TEXT — I am the resurrection, and the life. John 11:25.

PRIMARY TOPIC — When Jesus' Friends Stopped Crying.

JUNIOR TOPIC — With Jesus at Lazarus' Tomb.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC — The Power of Jesus over Death.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC — The Power of Jesus over Death.

Life, even to the follower of Jesus Christ, has its hours of sorrow, suffering, and bereavement. While the Christian is not "of the world," he is "in the world," and here he must meet the problems of life, including the evils to which the flesh is heir because of sin.

The fact that Jesus is our friend and our Saviour does not exempt us from human sorrow, but it does assure us of the needed grace to bear the trial and to trust Him even in life's darkest hour.

Lazarus, the friend of Jesus, was sick. The home in which Jesus had found rest and fellowship was in deep trouble. Jesus was no longer in Judea. In haste word is sent to him of his friend's illness. But he does not come.

Why does he delay? Such is the heart-cry of thousands today who call on him in their hour of trouble. The purposes of God are beyond our ability fully to understand. We need but to trust him and abide his time. Notice that his failure to respond at once to the message of Lazarus' sisters did not mean that he had deserted them (11:4-6). Nor did it mean that he had denied them his help (11:7). Lazarus may have been dead before the word reached him. He may also have delayed in order that there might be no question about the resurrection miracle. And he may have tarried in order that their faith might be strengthened.

Above all, do not fail to notice that he came. He always does. Jesus has never failed any child of his. The time and the manner of his answer to our prayers may not conform to our opinion of what should have been done, but let us remember that we know only in part, he knows all. Let us trust him. Job in his darkest hour said, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him." (Job 13:15).

It is suggested that the lesson for today be studied and taught by considering three pairs of words giving cause and effect.

I. Death—Sorrow (vv. 32-35; also vv. 19-21).

Try as we may to temper its cruel blow, the fact remains that death is the enemy of man. It came into the world as the result of sin (Rom. 5:12), and only in Christ is it "swallowed up in victory" (1 Cor. 15:54). Until the glorious day of Christ's returning when the redemption of the body will be complete (Rom. 8:23), death will still be the enemy which brings sorrow to the heart and tears to the eyes.

But let us not fail to notice that as the friends of Jesus we do not sorrow alone. He is with us. "Jesus wept" (v. 35) with Martha and Mary. He weeps with us in our trying hour. He is the "friend that sticketh closer than a brother."

II. Faith—Hope (vv. 23-28).

Those who believe in Christ have more than the comfort of his sympathizing presence—they have a sure hope. Read I Thessalonians 4:14-18. Sorrow and unbelief would becloud our faith and thus rob us of our hope. Martha needed to have her faith stimulated by the gracious words of the Lord, and then she triumphantly puts her hope in him as "the Christ of God." Once we recognize him as God, we have no hesitation in believing in his miraculous power.

III. Christ—Resurrection (vv. 25, 26, 38-44).

Majestic and authoritative are the words of Christ, "I am the resurrection and the life." He it was who gave life, for was he not "in the beginning with God"? And is it not said of him that "all things were made by him"? And Paul tells us that "by him all things consist." He is the only one who could say, "I lay down my life. I have power to lay it down and I have power to take it up again." (John 10:17, 18.) So it can rightly be said that if we have Christ we have everything—both in this world and in the world to come. But if we do not have Christ we have nothing. We are without God and without hope.

One can sense the urgency of the soul-winner's task, when this truth is known and realized.

Happiness and Love

Happiness is the legitimate fruitage of love and service. It never comes and never can come by making it an end, and it is because so many persons mistake here and seek for it directly, instead of loving and serving God, and thus obtaining it, that there is so much dissatisfaction and sorrow.

Life and Freedom

That life is only truly free which rules and suffices for itself.—Bulwer.

First in War and in Peace

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Washington's
Colonial Home

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S colonial home, Mount Vernon, has not been a residence for many years, nor has it been owned by a member of the Washington family for three quarters of a century, says the Washington Star.

Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, daughter of John Augustine Washington, the illustrious Washington's great-grandnephew, was the last private owner of the estate. She first saw the world from the most historic home in America in 1856.

Though General Washington's slaves, numbering more than 150, were freed by his will, his nephew, Bushrod Washington, who inherited Mount Vernon, John Augustine Washington Bushrod's nephew, and his son, John Augustine Washington, Jr., who in turn fell heirs to the estate, were slave owners.

Today, survivors of the last generation of negro folk born in the slave quarters of the old manor are proud that their slave parents served in the ancestral home of the Washingtons. Somehow, they give realism to the farm which George Washington owned and which they helped to care for, as young men. These white-haired men declare there never was any depression at the old farm where the nights were festivals with the singing of "Roll, Jordan, Roll," "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," and "Steal Away to Jesus."

George Washington, who is said to have been worth several hundred thousand dollars in today's values, had a salary of $25,000 a year during his presidency and added resources brought to him by his marriage with the rich Martha Custis. With such wealth he was able to keep his estate of 8,000 acres in fine condition. This was despite the fact that he was constantly entertaining visitors.

By the time the property was inherited by John Augustine Washington, his nephew, in 1829, the plantation had been reduced to 1,225 acres, only about 100 acres of which were suitable for farming. When his son, John Augustine Washington Jr., came into possession of the estate in 1860, after his mother's death, he realized that such wealth as his great-uncle George had possessed was required to restore Mount Vernon and maintain it in its former splendor.

According to tradition a Miss Ann Pamela Cunningham of South Carolina, who was a Potomac boat passenger about the time when John A. Washington wished to sell Mount Vernon, became so impressed with the tolling of the bell and the historical importance of George Washington's home that she became active in working for the purchase of the estate.

In 1858 the organization she had formed as the Mount Vernon Ladies' association of the Union contracted to buy the mansion and the patriotic appeal of the women and the efforts of Senator Edward Everett of Massachusetts, who toured the country and raised $68,294.59, Mount Vernon was actually purchased in 1860 for a shrine. Then the Washington family left the estate.

With breaking out of the Civil war, Miss Cunningham appealed to the commanders of both armies to preserve Mount Vernon. As both General Scott and General Lee gave orders that no armed man should enter the estate, the shrine was self-protected, the only neutral spot in the United States.

For several years members of at least four families of the Mt. Vernon slaves remained to care for the place, in the employ of the association. Some of the children grew up there and a few of the adults stayed long enough to gain the title of "aunt" or "uncle," which was a typical Southern respect for an aged negro.

For a while after the war visitors to Mount Vernon are said to have practiced such vandalism that they wrote their names over its walls and ceilings. Plaster was removed by those who cut pieces of laths as souvenirs, and even glass was broken in the cupola by those who wished to take away pieces of the famous home.

Today Mount Vernon, a national shrine, is a perfectly preserved plantation with mansion, greenhouse, kitchen, servant's quarters, coach house, smoke house, dairy, spinning house, carpenter's house, gardener's house and plantation office.

Perhaps the estate's closest touch with Washington are the beautiful trees in the grounds near the mansion which were planted either by General Washington or by his direction.

If the ancient ashes, beeches, buckeyes, hemlocks, coffee beans, elms, lindens, mulberry and the many venerable holly trees could speak, they would tell much about George Washington's life as a country gentleman.

America's most famous home, Mount Vernon, underwent not one but two major enlargements during the ownership of the First American who believed apparently, that the first duty of an American citizen to his family was to provide a comfortable home, according to a writer in the Washington Post.

When first built, about 1743, the Virginia home was an unpretentious plantation house of one and one-half stories, comprising the central section of the present mansion.

Just before his marriage to Martha Custis in 1759, Washington "renovized" the dwelling into a house of two and one-half stories by adding one complete story, but did not increase the floor area.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Items of Interest to the Housewife

A little sweet oil applied to bronzes after they are dusted, followed by a brisk rubbing with a chamomile skin will bring out their rich tones.

When serving pickled onions use sugar tongs instead of a fork. It is easier to get them out of the jar.

A little starch added to the water used in washing windows, mirrors and other glassware will not only help remove dirt but will give a lasting polish.

To remove brown stains from light colored ranges, dip a cloth in turpentine and apply to stains. With a little pressure the stains will come off.

Pour a cup of cold water over cooked cereal before leaving it for the night. This prevents a hard crust forming on cereal. Pour off water in the morning and reheat cereal.

When broiling a steak, cut off excess fat around edge to prevent it from catching fire when placed below glowing fire.

Put a small bowl of water in the oven and your cakes will not burn. Light the oven a good ten minutes before putting in your cake. When the cake has risen and begun to set, lower the heat a little and move to a cooler shelf. To test whether your cake is cooked, touch lightly with one finger; if cooked, the surface of the cake will spring back when the finger is removed.

A solution of ammonia or soda and water will remove grease stains from unvarnished wood.

Sliced almonds make a pleasant addition to chicken salad.

Bluing spots on white clothing can be removed by boiling in clear water.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

BILLY MINK LIVES HIGH

BILLY MINK was living high. Yes, sir, Billy Mink was living high. For the first time in his life he didn't have to hunt for his meals. Whenever he became hungry all he had to do was to slip out from under the woodpile, and there was a meal waiting for him. Of course it hadn't taken Billy long to find out where those meals came from. After the first day Billy had watched. Peeping out from his hiding place under the wood he had seen the farmer come from the house and leave something for him to eat and then go on to feed the hens.

Sometimes Billy would find scraps of meat. Sometimes it would be fish. Once, when the farmer and his wife had had a chicken dinner, Billy had found a couple of chicken heads, of which he is very fond. Always it was something Billy liked. He was living so high that he was actually growing fat and lazy.

And as the days went on Billy grew less and less afraid of that farmer. He decided that no one who meant harm to him would be so good to him. So after a while Billy would come out in broad daylight. In fact, the farmer would have gone hardly ten steps away before Billy would be out to see what had been left for him.

Smallest Midget

Paul Del Rio, the smallest midget—thirteen years old, 18 inches tall, weight 12 pounds—is seen having a little difficulty with his luggage in a Chicago hotel.

And the farmer took the greatest care not to do anything to frighten Billy. In short, Billy and the farmer were becoming very good friends.

Just for exercise Billy would occasionally run over to the big barn and hunt for mice. Once he visited the henhouse and found that there was no longer a trap there. Neither was there a hole by which he could get into that henhouse. The farmer had blocked up that hole through which Billy had once entered. After he discovered this Billy kept away from the henhouse. He knew that it was of no use to go there. You see, he is not like the rats; he doesn't gnaw holes. He makes use of holes some one else has made. His teeth are not made for gnawing.

But Billy wasn't especially disappointed because he couldn't get into the henhouse. In fact, he seldom thought about chickens. You see, he had plenty to eat, and, having

"Most of us who had only a shoe string to start with," says dubious Dot, "have never been able to even get the knot out of it."

ing plenty, there was no temptation to try to kill a chicken. So Billy felt very much at home and worried about nothing at all. There was nothing to worry about. He felt as if he quite belonged in that farmyard.

The Thumb of Responsive Love

LOVE is strange, indeed. In one we may find it shaped and expressed through a wish to make the world a better place to live in—love for our fellow man. In another it may be of more selfish kind—desire of the "one-man" woman or the "one-woman" man to center the affections upon a single individual.

In still another, it may be an overwhelming desire to love for love's own sake, sometimes unwisely and too well.

The thumb, if correctly analyzed, thin, three eggs beaten, one cupful of bread crumbs, one cupful of shredded coconut, three tablespoonfuls of grapefruit, one teaspoonful each of nutmeg, cinnamon and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, three-fourths cupful of sugar and two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice. Put into a well-buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven until brown. Spread when done with lemon sauce, using the juice and rind of two lemons, three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, one cupful of sugar, two cupfuls of boiling water and two eggs. Mix the dry ingredients, add to the water and cook slowly until thick, then add the remainder; beat until smooth. Spread this sauce over the top of the pudding and sprinkle thickly with the coconut.

Fruit sugars in both the uncooked fruits and in the jellies and marmalades are effective in furnishing an alkaline-ash reaction valuable to balance the acid-ash reaction of the cereal foods which play such an important part in the diet.

will usually indicate the kind of love the temperament is most likely to give and seek.

The Thumb of Responsive Love.

This thumb is always marked by resilient flexibility throughout its length. The entire thumb is gracefully proportioned, with evenly spaced first and second joints. The first joint is usually well tapered, rather fully fleshed on the side opposite the nail, and arched on the underside from the joint to the nail tip.

The second, or middle, joint is apt to be more curved than straight, although seldom pronounced in its slenderness. The third, or palm, joint is always much rounded and inclined to over-plumpness, this being accentuated when the thumb is pressed close to the edge of the hand. With the hand extended wide, the thumb stands out from the hand, sometimes almost at right angles to the palm.

All things being equal, a thumb with these characteristics is sure to indicate an extremely affectionate nature, one that is ardent though well controlled in matters of the heart, and generous to a fault where loved ones are concerned.

You Who Have Youth

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THOSE who have this have more than all else own
Who have it not, whatever wealth is theirs.
Those who have youth can face the years unknown
With time enough to solve their sudden cares.
How often, in the midst of many men,
Some great assemblage I am told to scan
And name the richest. That is easy then—
I need but ask, "Which is the youngest man?"

You who have youth, and yet of youth complain,
Ask of your elders, they who tire so soon,
If they could choose, what they would choose to gain?
Then noon would ask for morning, night for noon.
The old ask not for rest, they ask for this:
Strength for the struggle, time to see it through.
Ask of the old the thing that most they miss
And you will learn how much they envy you.

I sat between two men whose hair was gray:
The one was Riches, and the other Fame,
And Failure sat a little space away,
And yet all three made answer, made the same.
Fame had his crown, and Riches had his gold,
And even Failure consciousness of truth,
Yet all they had for one thing would have sold—
Yes, traded all with you, you who have youth.

KNOW THYSELF

by Dr. George D. Greer

If You Can't Remember Something, Are You More Likely to Recall It If You Concentrate on It, or If You Forget It for Awhile?

STRANGELY enough, it seems to make matters worse when we try to force ourselves to recall something that is "gone" for the time being. We scratch our heads, think hard, but nothing comes. We would recall the thing much sooner and more certainly if we would dismiss it from our minds for awhile, then return to it later. Dr. Knight Dunlap, in his book, "Habits," goes so far as to say that any real effort at recalling something actually delays the return of the forgotten thing to our minds, and, in addition, produces bad effects upon our minds themselves.

Lovely Dinner Gown

Wine-colored lace and pale raspberry morganza are skillfully combined in this beautiful dinner gown. Rows of stitching trim the bands of lace at the neck and waist.

Incentives Merely Help

No incentives that can secure continual right-doing should be despised; for it is only as the life and character become exalted that exalted motives become possible. On the other hand, we should ever regard lower motives as the steps of a ladder by which we mount to some eminence, each one of which, useful and necessary in its turn, is gladly left for the one above it.

We've a Date to Sew!

OH GRACE, before you go—you're not in a hurry, are you—notice Mabel's slip.

Isn't that the one that you were telling the girls about at the Bid-Or-Bi club last week, Mabel?

Yes, it's my Sew-Your-Own and I'm real proud of it because it fits so smoothly. There's no bunchiness at the waistline or hips—it's fitted, you see—and yet there's lots of room around the bottom. And do you know how long it took me to make it—no self praise, but exactly two hours by the clock. I simply followed the pattern's instruction chart—as easy to do as to concoct a new dessert.

Tie, Buttons, Hat to Match.

It would be grand for a tailored dress like mine, wouldn't it, Mabel?

Just the thing! Are you off to the Civic League luncheon at the Hall? Your dress made up beautifully in that aquamarine, Grace. I'm crazy about it. The yoke-and-sleeves-in-one idea is swell and the black tie and buttons to match your hat make you look like Mrs. Merriweather herself.

Now, now, cut the rave. You know that neat-but-not-gaudy is my motto. Bye, I'll see you in print.

So long . . . Anne, since you like my slip so much, I'll be glad to help you make one like it, if you want me to.

That's lovely of you, Mabel, but would that sort of thing be right for a "Stylish Stout" like me? You should hear George when I call myself a "Stylish Stout." He says I flatter myself.

That Slenderizing Effect.

Leave it to the men! This slip would be especially good for you, Anne, because it's fitted and, George or no George, you look stylish in that dress you're wearing—but you DON'T look stout. The panel in front breaks the skirt line, and the jabot and collar do wonders for the "Buz-zum." It would be grand made up in a flowered print for Spring, Anne.

That very idea occurred to me. Why don't we get together tomorrow afternoon and sew—are you game? Come to my house. I baked a batch of oatmeal cookies today.

It's a date, Anne, I'll be over in the morning as soon as the kids are off to school.

YOU CAN THROW CARDS IN HIS FACE ONCE TOO OFTEN

WHEN you have those awful cramps; when your nerves are all on edge—don't take it out on the man you love.

Your husband can't possibly know how you feel for the simple reason that he is a man.

A three-quarter wife may be no wife at all if she nags her husband seven days out of every month.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three criticals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife! Take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."
